[V] ex-owner of vote-auction.com claiming hoax ?

Wired-news has issued 2 articles about the ex-owner of vote-auction.com claiming this was all a hoax and never intended to work in reality.

Vote-auction.com has learned that the ex-owner has been under heavy pressure from federal and state-Authorities over the last weeks.

Various critical voices have tried to influence Vote-auction.com in order to discredit the effort to bring this full capitalistic market-place to the american people:

-- FSB business: „...Jay Stanley, an analyst at Forrester Research, doesn't believe that Bernhard plans to turn Voteauction.com into a lasting business..." -- <http://www.fsb.com/fortunesb/articles/0,2227,966,00.html>

-- Wired News: „ ...Deborah Phillips, chair of the Voting Integrity Project... "Satire doesn't usually involve the exchange of money, nor does it usually cross international boundaries or involve international security threats," she said."

Vote-auction.com has been purchased by an austrian Holding company for business-purposes. The long-term prospects of this free, large-scaled, global market has stimulated interest and the company will continue to run this platform after Nov, 7th.

The first ever public auction for the US-presidential election will take place on Nov. 7th, 2000.
